SERIES: SO YOU MAD? -METHODS FOR CONFLICT RESOLUTION Part V

“After the Love is Gone”: What Do You Do When Relationships are Seemingly Irreparable?

“Staying in a bad situation with no plan for changing the situation or our response is almost always a bad idea. Ignoring the problems we face won’t make them go away. We hope things will get better and that our crazy person will change.”

-excerpt from “People Can’t Drive You Crazy If You Don’t Give Them The Keys” by Mike Bechtle

Questions to Consider:

1. Do I want this relationship to be repaired?
2. Have I done all I can to repair this relationship?
3. Does the person(s) who offended me, want to continue a relationship with me?
4. What role did I play in causing this relationship to get to this point?

Actions We Can Take:

- | | |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. Accept the reality of the relationship. | Genesis 13:1-9 |
| 2. Adapt to make the relationship work. | Matthew 18:15-20 |
| 3. Adjust where we stand in our relationship. | Mark 6:1-6 |
| 4. Allow space for reconciliation, but it is not a requirement | Luke 23:24 |
